10.4 Registration (Section 36 TMA 2019)

When an application for registration of trademark has not been opposed and the period for opposition has expired or the opposition has been decided in favour of the applicant; the trademark will be registered and a notification of registration will be issued.

Key points:

A trademark will be registered after the application process is complete and if:

- No opposition has been filed against the application.
- The opposition period has expired or the opposition decision has been made in favour of the applicant.

Once the registration is confirmed, a notification of registration will be issued to the applicant.

10.5 Certificate of registration (Regulation 36 TMR 2019)

Certificate is optional but valuable. The trademark registration itself exists in the Register, but the certificate is a formal physical document proving ownership.

The proprietor may obtain the certificate by submitting (TMJ4) and paying the prescribed fees.

The certificate can be used as evidence in court proceedings, licensing agreements, or for business transactions involving the trademark.

The fees and procedural details are laid out in the GTM 2019 (Second and Third Schedule)

10.6 Registration conclusive (Section 53 TMA 2019)

After 5 years from the original registration date, the registration of the trademark becomes conclusive in legal proceedings, unless one of the following is proven:

a) Fraud

The original registration was obtained by fraudulent means.

b) Offends public policy or law

The trademark offends the conditions under Section 23(5)(a), (c), (d), or (e) of the TMA 2019.

c) Devoid of distinctiveness

The trademark was, at the commencement of the legal proceedings, devoid of distinctiveness regarding the goods or services of the registered proprietor.

This provision balances the protection of rights of trademark owners with safeguards against abuse or improper registration.

10.7 Registration under TMA1976

For applications filed under the TMA1976, will continue to apply to the registration process.

However, once the trademark is successfully registered, any subsequent proceedings relating to that registration, such as assignment, licensing, or enforcement, will generally be governed by the TMA 2019.
